KARAKIA

Te Reo Rangatira / The Maori Language:

Kia tau te manaakitanga ki runga ki tēnā
ki tēnā o tātau

Kia whakairia te tapu

Kia wātea ai te ara

Kia turuki whakataha ai

Kia turuki whakataha ai

Haumi e!

Hui e!

Taiki e!

Te Reo Pakeha / English:

Settle care and protection upon each of us

Move the restrictions of sacredness

So that the pathway may be clear

Set aside personal issues and grievances

Set aside personal issues and grievances

Gather it!

Bind it!

It is done!

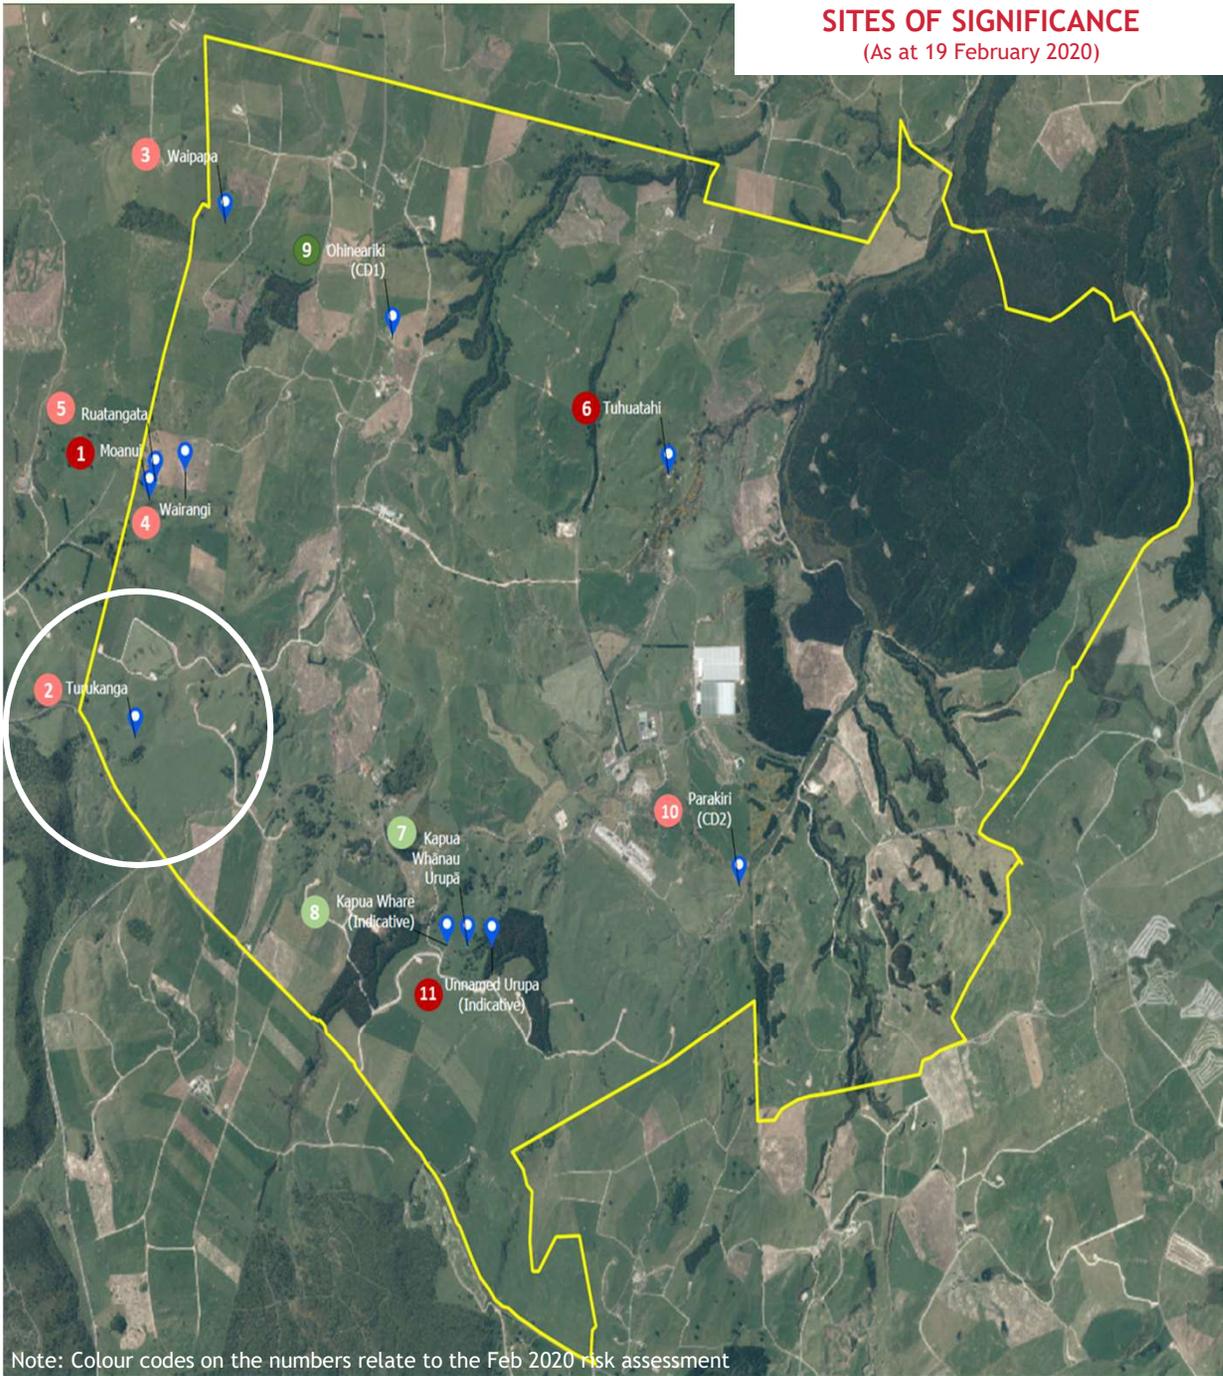

HISTORY

In the days of our ancestors, many iwi and hapu would bury their dead close to settlements or pa. After some time, they would disinter the bones of these tupuna and place them in secret locations for protection. These locations would often include caves, secret forest complexes, and remote islands. Today, the structure and tikanga of urupa is heavily influenced by Christianity and European cultural practices in regards to burial.

It is widely accepted by most iwi and hapu that urupa are tapu (sacred and with spiritual restriction). As such, several cultural protocols must be adhered to when entering or visiting an urupa. These cultural practices may include the requirement of specific karakia (incantations), the washing of hands when exiting the urupa, and the restriction of food and animals. Please consult the Culture and Legacy Team for further information in cultural practices.
